

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

An objective-lens driving apparatus includes permanent magnets on both ends of the movable unit, simultaneously, on the other side of the movable unit parallel to the tracking direction, also a permanent magnet at a position closer to the center of the movable unit. This configuration makes it possible to reduce each moment generated at each of a focusing coil and a tracking coil when an objective lens is displaced.